Management Comments (08/31/19)

Several factors have greatly affected currency markets during the month of August. The escalation in Trade War between the United States and China, and Boris Johnson's stance on Brexit have caused strong corrections in equity markets during the first fortnight of August and a shockwave in currencies.

Movements within our universe have experienced the most extreme situation in history for many pairs. As an example, GBP against CHF and JPY have accumulated 15 weeks of declines in a row, something we had not seen in 40 years. As well, even though we do not trade it, CNH has experienced the worst month in 25 years. This directly affects AUD and NZD within our space. In this context of great uncertainty, JPY and CHF have strongly revalued against most currencies.

The fund ends August with a negative return of -4.8. All these events have caused for the first time ever a partial stop loss in the portfolio, even though we did not reach the stop loss level in any of the sub-strategies. Going forward we see the model reinforced and the opportunity set is terrific.
